10 WILLIAM SCHEIDLER,

11 Plaintiff,

12 v.

13 JAMES AVERY, et al.,

Defendants.

CASE NO. C12-5996 RBL

ORDER

[Dkt. #s 68, 76, 77, 79 & 100]

14 THIS MATTER is before the Court on five Motions:

15 1. Plaintiff Scheidler's Motion to Amend his Complaint for a third time, by replacing the 16 34 page "RICO statement" appended to his Second Amended Complaint [Dkt. #58-11] with a
17 new, 129 page RICO statement. [Dkt. #68]

18 2. Defendants Washington State Board of Tax Appeals (and its chair, Slonum's) Motion
19 to Dismiss. [Dkt. #76]

20 3. County Defendants Avery, George, Haberly and Miles's Motion to Dismiss. [Dkt.
21 #77]

22 4. Defendants Washington State Bar Association (and associates Congalton and 23 Mosner's) Motion to Dismiss. [Dkt. #79] and

1       5. Clerk of the Court Defendants Carlson and Ponzoha's Motion to Dismiss. [Dkt. #100]

2 A. Procedural History.

3 Scheidler claims that he is a retired, disabled person eligible for a property tax
 4 exemption<sup>1</sup> under Chapter 84.36 RCW. That statute permits such relief in some cases,
 5 depending in part on the applicant's "disposable income"—which is his Adjusted Gross Income
 6 plus additional amounts listed in RCW 84.36.383(5). Generally, those with disposable incomes
 7 greater than $35,000 are not eligible for an exemption:

8       A person who otherwise qualifies under this section and has a combined
 9       disposable income of thirty-five thousand dollars or less but greater than thirty 10      thousand dollars is exempt from all regular property taxes on the greater of fifty thousand dollars or thirty-five percent of the valuation of his or her residence, but not to exceed seventy thousand dollars of the valuation of his or her residence[.]

11      RCW 84.36.381(b)(i) (emphasis added).

12      Scheidler sued Assessor Avery in Kitsap County Superior Court in 2008, complaining 13      that the Assessor's calculation of "disposable income" in connection with such exemptions was 14      inconsistent with Washington law. [See Dkt. #1-2 at 5] Defendant attorney Miles represented

16      <sup>1</sup> The early part of this history is taken from Scheidler's original complaint [Dkt. #1-2]
 17      and the exhibits to it. Scheidler's subsequent filings admit he has been chasing this white whale 18      since at least 1998. See Dkt. #58 at 9, 13, blaming "17 years" of "cascading unfortunate events" on the prior Kitsap County Assessor's failure to grant the property tax exemption he apparently sought at that time.

19      Scheidler also blames Scott Ellerby, an attorney who represented him in those earlier 20      proceedings. Id. "This case and every event touching this case, has its beginning in the misrepresentations of Scott Ellerby, WSBA # 16277, and the lies he told[.]" [Dkt. # 89 at 11]
 21      Scheidler filed a bar complaint against Ellerby, which was dismissed.

22      In 2009, Scheidler sued Ellerby over his 1998 representation, and lost. Scheidler
 23      appealed, and Judge Hartman's dismissal of his claims on summary judgment was affirmed.
 24      Scheidler v. Ellerby, 2012 WL 2899730 [Dkt. # 102 at Ex. 1] The players in the Ellerby lawsuit (Judge Hartman, Ellerby, and his attorney, Jeff Downer) all appear in Scheidler's second amended complaint in this case [Dkt. #58], as well as his proposed amended RICO statement [Dkt. #68].

1 Defendant Assessor Avery, and in January 2009, Defendant Judge Haberly dismissed Scheidler's
2 complaint on Miles's Motion. Scheidler appealed, and in May, 2010, the Court of Appeals
3 affirmed. It held that there was no justiciable controversy, because Scheidler had not yet actually
4 applied for a property tax exemption. See Scheidler v. Kitsap County Assessor, 2010 WL 5 1972780<sup>2</sup>.

In June, 2010, Scheidler filed property tax exemption applications for the 2007, 2008, 2009 and 2010 tax years, based on his income in each prior year. [Dkt. #1-2 at 38-45]. He sent the forms under a June 10 cover letter to Assessor Avery, explaining that he was forced to sign the forms “UNDER DURESS.” [Dkt. #1-2 at 47] He continued to claim that Kitsap County’s instructions for filling out the forms were contrary to the law (and an invasion of privacy), because they did not permit him to count some losses in determining his disposable income.

Scheidler claimed that his disposable income<sup>3</sup> in each relevant year was under the $35,000 limit:

YEAR	Disposable Income
2006.....	$27,163
2007.....	$-136,045 less medical insurance payments and payments for medication
2008.....	$28,703                "
2009.....	$21,300                "

<sup>2</sup> Scheidler's complaints all reference, discuss, and rely on his various prior lawsuits and their allegedly fraudulent, criminal and otherwise unlawful resolution. But not all of the referenced orders or opinions are included in his exhibits. The court takes judicial notice of the actual outcomes where they are available.

<sup>3</sup> William Scheidler alone is the pro se plaintiff, but the tax exemption applications that triggered this litigation were also filed on behalf of his wife, Mary.

1 [Dkt. 1-2 at 48] Scheidler attached a “Combined Disposable Income Worksheet” for each year.
 2 These worksheets showed that in 2006, Scheidler’s “Total Combined Disposable Income Less
 3 Allowable Deductions” was $112,457. [Dkt. #1-2 at 39] For 2007, it was $75,190; for 2008,
 4 $51,495; and for 2009, $23,539. [See Dkt. #1-2 at 41, 43, and 45]

5 Avery denied Scheidler’s exemption applications for 2007-2009, but agreed that he was 6 at least partially exempt for 2010. In September, 2010, Scheidler appealed all four 7 determinations to the Board of Equalization, by filing form “Taxpayer Petitions to the Kitsap
 8 County Board of Equalization for Review of Senior Citizen/Disabled Person Exemption or 9 Deferral Determination” for 2006, 2007, 2008 and 2009. [See Dkt. #1-2 at 33 to 36]. Scheidler
 10 claimed that his applications were “fraud” because they misstate the law. [Dkt. #1-2 at 6]

11 Scheidler’s BOE appeal was denied, and he appealed to the Washington State Board of 12 Tax Appeals<sup>4</sup>. On September 6, 2012, the Chair of the Board (Defendant Slonum) issued an 13 Order Granting the Assessor’s (Defendant Avery’s) Motion for Summary Judgment, dismissing
 14 the four appeals. [Dkt. #1-2 at 52-55]. Slonum explained that BoTA did not have jurisdiction
 15 over Scheidler’s “various<sup>5</sup> Causes of Action,” and that it could address only Scheidler’s appeal
 16 of his eligibility for the property tax exemptions. Slonum recognized that Scheidler disagreed
 17 with the disposable income calculation, but described his interpretation as “erroneous.” Instead, 18 she held that the Assessor’s computations of Scheidler’s disposable income were correct, and 19 that there were no questions of fact in light of Scheidler’s income tax returns:

 21       <sup>4</sup> Scheidler’s original complaint “incorporates by reference” the “record on review in BoTA #11-507-510” [Dkt. #1-2 at 6], but only portions of that record are attached to his pleadings. Indeed, most of the Exhibits listed in Dkt. #1-2 are not attached to the complaint on the Court’s electronic (CM/ECF) docket: A-1, A-5, parts of A-6, A-7 to A-27, and A31-A33 are not included.

 24       <sup>5</sup> Scheidler sought declaratory relief and a jury trial from the BoTA. [Dkt. #1-2 at 6]

1       The plain language of RCW 84.36.383(5) and this Board's many interpretations
 2 of the statutory term make it clear that the Respondent is entitled to summary judgment
 3 on all four appeals. The Appellants were approved for the maximum possible exemption
 4 for tax year 2010 (Docket No. 11-510), and the Board recently dismissed that appeal with 5 prejudice. The Appellants' applications for tax years 2007, 2008, and 2009 (Docket Nos.
 6 11-507 to 509) were correctly denied by the Respondent and the County Board because 7 their combined disposable income for each of those years, as determined by the plain 8 language of the exemption statute, exceeded the statutory maximum of $35,000.

9 [Dkt. #1-2 at 54]. Slonum denied the Assessor's request for Rule 11 sanctions, because (and 10 only because) she did not have "the power of the superior court" to do so. Id.

11       Meanwhile, Scheidler filed a bar complaint against Miles, "based on his inconsistent
 12 legal arguments." Defendant WSBA dismissed the grievance. [Dkt. #1-2 at 7]

13       After the BoTA decision, Scheidler sought relief from Judge Haberly in the already-14 affirmed and -closed Scheidler v. Kitsap County Assessor (08-2-02882-0) case. Those efforts
 15 were denied, and Judge Haberly forced Scheidler to pay the Assessor's costs. [Dkt. #1-2 at 7;
 16 citing Exhibit A-30 thereto (which is not the cited Order).] Judge Haberly denied Scheidler's Motion for Reconsideration on September 21, 2012. [Dkt #1-2 at 57]

17       Two weeks later, Scheidler filed a lawsuit in Kitsap County against the four primary 18 characters who had recently advocated or decided against him: James Avery (the Kitsap County
 19 Assessor), Alan Miles (Avery's attorney, a Kitsap County Deputy Prosecutor), Karlynn Haberly
 20 (the Kitsap County Superior Court Judge) and Kay Slonum (the Board of Tax Appeals Chair).
 21 He broadly claimed that each had violated a long list of criminal statutes, engaged in fraud, and

1 generally<sup>6</sup> infringed his constitutional rights. [Dkt. #1-2] Before he served his complaint,
 2 Scheidler filed an amended complaint [Dkt. # 1-3], though it is clear that he intended the 3 amendment to supplement, rather than replace, the original. [See Dkt. # 1-3 at 2] Scheidler
 4 served his amended complaint, and the Defendants timely removed the case here. [Dkt. #s 1-2, 5 1-3].

6 Scheidler moved for remand (and for disqualification of the attorneys who removed the 7 case on behalf of their clients) [Dkt. #9], and for disqualification of the court [Dkt. #11]. The 8 Defendants moved to dismiss.

9 This Court denied the motions to remand and to recuse. It dismissed all of the claims
 10 with prejudice, and without leave to amend, because the claims Scheidler asserted and the “facts”
 11 they were based on were not viable or plausible as a matter of law—suing a superior court judge
 12 for deciding against you has never been a viable claim in this Circuit (or anywhere else). [See
 13 Dkt. #38]

14 Scheidler appealed. The Ninth Circuit affirmed the denial of Scheidler’s motions to 15 remand and recuse, and affirmed the dismissal of all of Scheidler’s previously-asserted claims.
 16 But it held that the Court should have given Scheidler an opportunity to amend his complaint in 17 an attempt to assert a viable claim. [Dkt. #51, citing United States v. Corinthian Colleges, 655
 18 F.3d 984, 995 (9th Cir. 2011) (“Dismissal without leave to amend is improper unless it is clear,
 19 upon de novo review, that the complaint could not be saved by any amendment. . . . Here, we can 20 conceive of additional facts that could, if formally alleged, support the claims that Corinthian 21 made false statements[.]”)]

 23         <sup>6</sup> Slonum counted 28 claims against her in Scheidler’s amended complaint, the majority of them alleging violations of criminal statutes. [Dkt. #8 at 2-3] 24

1       The Ninth Circuit provided no guidance as to the facts or claims it conceived Scheidler
2 might plausibly assert against the Judge, the Assessor, his attorney, or the chair of the non-party
3 BoTA. Nevertheless, it remanded the case to give Scheidler an opportunity to try, and to pursue
4 the BoTA appeal he “incorporated by reference” into his initial complaint.

5       In response<sup>7</sup>, Scheidler filed a second amended<sup>8</sup> complaint. It is 60 pages long, with 6 more than 200 pages of exhibits. [Dkt. #58] Scheidler repeats many conclusory allegations and 7 accusations about the original defendants’ conduct, but he also adds seven new defendants and a 8 host of new claims, based on entirely new factual allegations.

9       Scheidler now alleges a massive RICO conspiracy:

<sup>7</sup> Since remand, Scheidler has continued his efforts to disqualify this Court (and any other with a connection to the WSBA). Those efforts were consistently denied, but rather than seek an interlocutory appeal, Scheidler filed a “Writ of Mandamus” in the Ninth Circuit, which is apparently still pending. [Dkt. # 114] Such a filing does not deprive this Court of jurisdiction, and the pending Motions are ready for decision.

<sup>8</sup> The Clerk Defendants point out that Scheidler did not seek or obtain leave of Court to add new parties. [Dkt. #100] Leave to amend in lieu of dismissal under Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) permits a plaintiff to cure deficiencies (usually factual) in his existing pleading; it is not an invitation to assert different claims against new parties arising out of wholly unrelated factual allegations.

24

1 This action is precedent setting. It involves the highest levels of the WA Judicial System and
 2 the self-policing WA State Bar association, including the Supreme Court Judges and other
 3 Judges, Prosecutors, and Private Attorney at Law, all tied together through the WA State Bar
 4 Association and committing crimes with impunity against victims in various combinations of 5 legal abuse schemes utilizing the courts and other agencies controlled by WA State Bar lawyers
 6 to aid and abet.

7 The racketeering conspiracy and anti-trust activity is witnessed and experienced first-hand
 8 by Plaintiff and countless other victims of this enterprise throughout the State of WA. It is 9 masterminded at the highest levels of WA State Bar association. Bar associates-in-fact, coming
 10 from various public and private domains, have created a RICO enterprise that now dominates
 11 and controls the WA State Bar's disciplinary functions, which in turn controls the market for 12 attorneys in WA by taking attorneys out of the market who advocate 'unpopular' causes, which 13 affect individuals, businesses and interstate commerce.

14 The extent of the Bar's criminal conduct includes, but is not limited to, insurance fraud
 15 through case fixing; kidnapping through case fixing under color of child protective services;
 16 human trafficking and even "murder by neglect" through case fixing under color of 17 guardianships; Conspiracy; Extortion; and false imprisonment through case fixing.

18 [Dkt. #58 at 2] Scheidler also asserts:

- 19 • Section 1983 claims for violations of "due process and conspiracy to interfere with civil 20 rights" ($10,000,000 per defendant);
- 21 • Fraud claims (fraud, intrinsic fraud, and fraud upon the Court);
- 22 • Violations of state law criminal statutes regarding perjury, forgery and trading in public 23 office;
- 24 • Violations of "criminal code and the anti-SLAPP statute (RCW 4.24.525)";
- Violations of criminal code Chapter 9.73 RCW ($3,000,000);
- Violations of the criminal profiteering statute (state RICO) (Chapter 9A.82 RCW) ($3,000,000);

- 1 • A ($3,000,000) damages claim under Chapter 7.56 RCW;
- 2 • Anti-trust violations under 15 U.S.C. §1 (the Sherman Act);
- 3 • Violations of the ADA ($1,000,000); and,
- 4 • An “Administrative Procedures Act” appeal under Chapter 34.05 RCW (what he describes as the property tax appeal).
- 5 • Various injunctions, including the creation of a $1 billion fund to reimburse those, like him, who have allegedly been forced to over-pay property taxes.

6 [Dkt. #58] Each defendant seeks dismissal, and Scheidler seeks to amend his complaint to 7 include a more expansive RICO statement. [Dkt. #68] In his responses to the defendants'
8 motions, Scheidler seeks yet another opportunity to amend his complaint, to correct what he 9 concedes might be “minor” “procedural” deficiencies. [Dkt. # 89 at 3, 14; #108]

12 B. Fed. R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) Standard.

13 The adequacy of a pleading in the United States District Courts is governed by the 14 Federal Rules of Civil Procedure<sup>9</sup>. Dismissal under Fed R. Civ. P. 12(b)(6) may be based on 15 either the lack of a cognizable legal theory or the absence of sufficient facts alleged under a 16 cognizable legal theory. Balistreri v. Pacifica Police Dep’t, 901 F.2d 696, 699 (9th Cir. 1990).
17 A plaintiff’s complaint must allege facts to state a claim for relief that is plausible on its face.

18 See Aschcroft v. Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. 1937, 1949 (2009) (emphasis added). A claim has “facial

20       <sup>9</sup> Scheidler argues that state law “pre-empts” the Iqbal/Twombly standard [Dkt. # 89 at 4], 21 based on his reading of a Washington case holding that the federal standard does not apply to 22 state court pleadings in state court cases under the Washington State Rules of Civil Procedure.
23 See McCurry v. Chevy Chase Bank, FSB, 169 Wn.2d 96, 102 (2010) (“The Supreme Court’s 24 plausibility standard is predicated on policy determinations specific to the federal trial courts.”)

25 This is a federal trial court, and its jurisdiction is based on Scheidler’s allegations of 26 violations of myriad federal laws. Scheidler’s reading of McCurry is simply wrong.

1 “plausibility” when the party seeking relief “pleads factual content that allows the court to draw
 2 the reasonable inference that the defendant is liable for the misconduct alleged.” Id. Although 3 the Court must accept as true the complaint’s well-pled facts, conclusory allegations of law and 4 unwarranted inferences will not defeat a Rule 12 motion. Vazquez v. L. A. County, 487 F.3d
 5 1246, 1249 (9th Cir. 2007); Sprewell v. Golden State Warriors, 266 F.3d 979, 988 (9th Cir.
 6 2001) (emphasis added). “[A] plaintiff’s obligation to provide the ‘grounds’ of his ‘entitle[ment]
 7 to relief’ requires more than labels and conclusions, and a formulaic recitation of the elements
 8 of a cause of action will not do. Factual allegations must be enough to raise a right to relief
 9 above the speculative level.” Bell Atl. Corp. v. Twombly, 550 U.S. 544, 555 (2007) (citations 10 and footnotes omitted) (emphasis added). This requires a plaintiff to plead more than “an 11 unadorned, the-defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me-accusation.” Iqbal, 129 S. Ct. at 1949
 12 (citing Twombly) (emphasis added).

13 On a 12(b)(6) motion, “a district court should grant leave to amend even if no request to 14 amend the pleading was made, unless it determines that the pleading could not possibly be cured
 15 by the allegation of other facts.” Cook, Perkiss & Liehe v. N. Cal. Collection Serv., 911 F.2d 242, 16 247 (9th Cir. 1990) (emphasis added). However, where the facts are not in dispute, and the sole 17 issue is whether there is liability as a matter of substantive law, the court may deny leave to 18 amend. Albrecht v. Lund, 845 F.2d 193, 195–96 (9th Cir. 1988).

19 C. Scheidler has not stated (and cannot plausibly state) a claim against the County Defendants.

20 Scheidler’s second amended complaint does not meaningfully change the factual basis
 21 for his claims against the County Defendants: Assessor Avery; his attorney, Miles; and Judge 22 Haberly, who dismissed Scheidler’s 2008 case. Instead, it adds attorney Ione George, who 23 represents these parties in this case. Scheidler alleges only that George removed the case, sought
 24

1 its dismissal, and refused to agree with his remand efforts. [See Dkt. #s 58, 77 at 4] These facts
 2 are not disputed.

3 In what can be recognized as a theme in Scheidler's submissions over time, he repeats his 4 conclusory claims that those disagreeing with him in any context violated various laws, oaths
 5 and duties by refusing to agree with him. George opposed him and was predictably named<sup>10</sup> in 6 the next iteration of his complaint. This Court's dismissal of the prior claims (and its denial of 7 Scheidler's motion to remand) has already been affirmed by the Ninth Circuit. These factual
 8 allegations do not support any of Scheidler's numerous claims against George.

9 Stripped of the conclusory accusations, each of Scheidler's complaints contains very little 10 in the way of factual allegations related to any County Defendant. Scheidler simply but 11 vehemently disagrees with the way the decision-makers (and their attorneys) read the property 12 tax exemption statute and its calculation of "disposable income" vis a vis capital losses. From 13 this, Scheidler infers and alleges a vast and growing conspiracy to defraud anyone who is not a 14 WSBA member (or, as he alleges in his RICO statements, anyone who is a member but is an 15 "enemy" of the organization).

16 Scheidler fundamentally misapprehends the duties of attorneys generally, and of those 17 opposing him in this and prior cases. He claims that the defendants have "statutory obligations 18 to remedy Scheidler's pleadings" [Dkt. # 89 at 2 (emphasis in original)], and he repeats that 19 lawyers have a "fiduciary duty" to "take the case of" and "rescue" the "oppressed." [Id.] Thus,
 20 by labeling himself as "oppressed," he can unilaterally foist upon the defendants a fiduciary duty 21 to protect him from whatever evils he can imagine. Scheidler claims elsewhere that the

23 <sup>10</sup> If past is prologue, Scheidler's Response to the State Court Defendants' Motion
 24 suggests that their attorney will be his next target. [See Dkt. #108 at 2, 12 (claiming that Liabralaten is "in violation of her code" and that "she must be disbarred.")].

1 defendants “must fix” any deficiencies in his complaint, and that the WSBA “delegated to
 2 Scheidler” the “TASK of documenting corruption of WSBA lawyers.” [Dkt. #89 at 15
 3 (emphasis in original); Dkt. #108 at 5 (emphasis in original)] These assertions do not accurately
 4 describe any attorney’s duty.

5       Scheidler also claims that by removing the case, the original defendants and new
 6 defendant George engaged in unlawful “forum shopping,” and that filing a Rule 12(b)(6) Motion
 7 to Dismiss is “on its face” a “limitation of Scheidler’s civil action,” and “in that regard is back-
 8 door legalization of ‘unauthorized or invalid acts’ of government officials.” [Dkt. #89 at 7] 9 These claims are baseless, and there is no conceivable additional fact that can be pled to make 10 them cognizable or plausible.

11       Scheidler’s §1983 claims, based on alleged violations of the Washington Constitution (or 12 other state laws), are not viable as a matter of law, and cannot be made plausible by the 13 allegation of additional or different facts. See Peters v Vinatieri, 102 Wn. App. 641, 649 (2000), 14 and other authority accurately summarized in Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss [Dkt. # 77 at 5-6].

15       Similarly, Scheidler’s claims that the County Defendants violated various criminal 16 statutes are not cognizable under §1983 or any other vehicle, because none of those laws provide 17 for a private right of action. See Thompson v. Thompson, 484 U.S. 174, 179 (1988); see also 18 Keenan v. McGrath, 328 F.2d 610, 611 (1st Cir.1964) (only the U.S. Attorney can initiate 19 criminal proceedings in federal court.)

20       Scheidler claims that the County Defendants violated the United States Constitution, but 21 other than naming constitutional provisions, he does not (and cannot) articulate or plead facts
 22 that would plausibly support such a claim. He does not address the various immunities that 23 would preclude such claims. Judge Haberly, for example, was and is absolutely judicially

1      immune from Scheidler's claims. See Lallas v. Skagit County, 167 Wn.2d 861, 865 (2009).
 2      Scheidler's constitutional claims against these defendants are nothing more than "unadorned,
 3      the-defendant-unlawfully-harmed-me-accusations," and they are not viable as a matter of law.

4            Scheidler's new RICO and other claims are similarly, fatally defective. Disagreeing with 5      a taxpayer's analysis of the applicability of a statutory property tax exemption—or representing 6      one who so disagrees—does not violate RICO, the Sherman Act, the ADA or any other federal 7      or state statute giving rise to personal liability<sup>11</sup> to the taxpayer.

8            The facts are not in dispute, and there is no potential liability as a matter of substantive 9      law. Scheidler cannot conceivably plead additional facts to make these claims viable or 10     plausible. The County Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Dkt. #77] is GRANTED, and all of 11     Scheidler's claims against them are DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE and WITHOUT LEAVE
 12     TO AMEND.

13 D. Scheidler has not stated (and cannot plausibly state) a claim against the WSBA
 14     Defendants.

15            Scheidler's second amended complaint adds the Washington State Bar Association and 16     two of its agents. He claims the WSBA has a duty to ensure that its attorney members "protect 17     and maintain Scheidler's individual rights," and that it is a "RICO enterprise" with the "common
 18     purpose of commandeering Washington's judicial branch," in order to protect "RICO
 19     associations in fact," so as to "defraud and extort citizens of their money, rights and property."
 20     [Dkt. #58 at 31]

21            Scheidler's primary factual support of this bold claim is a lengthy re-hashing of attorney 22     disciplinary proceedings to which he was not a party, and which have already been resolved,

---

23            <sup>11</sup> Properly pled and pursued, an appeal of an adverse BoTA decision does not seek 24     damages from the Assessor, his attorney, or the administrative decision-maker; it instead seeks a reversal of the property tax exemption decision. Scheidler's tax appeal is discussed below.

1 coupled with conclusory accusations of dishonesty, corruption, criminal conduct, extortion,
 2 perjury, ethical violations, and the like. [Dkt. #s 58, 68, 89] His complaint appears to stem
 3 primarily from the WSBA's failure to discipline attorneys against whom he has previously filed 4 grievances, and from his negative experiences with lawyers and courts generally.

5 Scheidler also sued Zachary Mosner (a WSBA "Conflicts Review Officer" volunteer,
 6 who allegedly failed to investigate Scheidler's bar compliant against his prior attorney, Ellerby), 7 and—for the second time—Felice Congalton (a WSBA employee in the Office of Disciplinary 8 Counsel, who dismissed Scheidler's prior grievances against other attorneys).

9 The WSBA Defendants seek dismissal with prejudice and without leave to amend. [Dkt.
 10 #79] They argue that Scheidler has no standing to complain about the results of his grievances
 11 and that this court accordingly does not have subject matter jurisdiction over these claims.

12 Scheidler must establish standing:

13 The irreducible constitutional minimum of standing contains three elements.
 14 First, the plaintiff must have suffered an "injury in fact" – an invasion of a legally 15 protected interest which is (a) concrete and particularized, and (b) "actual or 16 imminent, not 'conjectural' or 'hypothetical.'" Second, there must be a causal 17 connection between the injury and the conduct complained of—the injury has to 18 be "fairly traceable to the challenged action of the defendant, and not the result of 19 the independent action of some third party not before the court." Third, it must 20 be "likely," as opposed to merely "speculative," that the injury will be "redressed 21 by a favorable decision." The party invoking federal jurisdiction bears the burden 22 of establishing these elements.

23 Lujan v. Defenders of Wildlife, 504 U.S. 555, 560 (1992) (emphasis added). He cannot meet this 24 burden. Scheidler's complaint is not that the Bar did something to him, but that they failed to do something to someone else—the lawyers against whom he filed grievances. Like any other private citizen, Scheidler does not have standing to force a prosecutor to prosecute a third party:

25 The Court's prior decisions consistently hold that a citizen lacks standing to 26 contest the policies of the prosecuting authority when he himself is neither

1           prosecuted nor threatened with prosecution.... [A]private citizen lacks a judicially
 2           cognizable interest in the prosecution or nonprosecution of another.

3        See Linda R.S. v. Richard D., 410 U.S. 614, 619 (1973); see also Doyle v Oklahoma Bar Ass'n,
 4        998 F.2d 1559, 1567 (10th Cir. 1993) (private plaintiff has standing because he has no right to 5        compel disciplinary proceeding; the only person who stands to suffer direct injury is the lawyer
 6        involved). The WSBA cites numerous other cases for this same proposition. [Dkt. #79 at 8-9]

7           Scheidler's Response [Dkt. # 89] does not address his standing to sue under these 8           authorities. He has not met his burden of establishing standing.

9           The WSBA defendants also argue that they are entitled to absolute quasi-judicial 10          immunity—not just from damages, but from suit. See Mireles v. Waco, 502 U.S. 9 (1991); Hirsh
 11          v. Justices of the Supreme Court of Cal., 67 F.3d 708, 715 (9th Cir. 1995) (bar judges and 12          prosecutors have quasi-judicial immunity); and cases discussed in the WSBA's Motion [Dkt. #79
 13          at 10-12.] Indeed, this issue was squarely and recently addressed in the case from which 14          Scheidler's complaint appears to draw its inspiration<sup>12</sup>—Scannell v. Washington State Bar
 15          Association, Western District of Washington Cause No. C12 - 0693 SJO. [See Order Granting 16          Motion to Dismiss, Dkt. #94 in that case]

17           Scheidler argues that the Defendants' claimed immunity is “prohibited” under the 18          Washington Constitution. He claims that “any holding by any court granting privileges and 19          immunities to defendants is void under WA common law RCW 4.04.010[.]” [Dkt. # 89 at 6, 20          citing Scheidler's second amended complaint, Dkt. #58].

21           <sup>12</sup> Scannell's disciplinary proceeding is discussed at length in Scheidler's RICO
 22          statement(s), and Scannell's subsequent (and since dismissed) RICO lawsuit bears a strong 23          resemblance to Scheidler's proposed amended RICO statement. [Cf. Dkt. #68 in this case to 24          Dkt. #74 in Scannell's]. Scannell, unlike Scheidler, was a disciplined attorney and he at least partly sought to vindicate his own alleged injuries. Nevertheless, his claim was dismissed and is on appeal.

1        This argument is not persuasive. The WSBA defendants are entitled to absolute quasi-2 judicial immunity as a matter of law.

3        The WSBA Defendants also argue that Scheidler's claims against them are barred by res
 4 judicata, because his prior, similar Kitsap County lawsuit against Congalton was dismissed with 5 prejudice. See Scheidler v Callner, Kitsap Superior Court Cause No. 14-2-00042-3 [Dkt. #79-1
 6 (complaint) and #79-2 and -3 (orders dismissing Congalton and Callner, respectively)].
 7 Scheidler did not appeal.

8        The doctrine of res judicata precludes re-litigation of claims that were raised in a prior 9 action, or which could have been raised in a prior action. W. Radio Servs. Co. v. Glickman, 123
 10 F.3d 1189, 1192 (9th Cir. 1997) (emphasis added). An action is barred by res judicata when an 11 earlier suit: (1) involved the same claim or cause of action as the later suit; (2) involved the 12 same parties; and (3) reached a final judgment on the merits. Mpoyo v. Litton Electro-Optical 13 Sys., 430 F.3d 985, 987 (9th Cir. 2005).

14        Scheidler argues that the prior case is "VOID for fraud," and that there is no such thing as 15 res judicata in any event: "Res Judicata can never be claimed as only a "jury verdict" terminates 16 a case." [Dkt. # 89 at 12 (emphasis in original)] These arguments are unsupportable and 17 frivolous. He already sued Congalton for the very conduct he alleges against her here, and lost.
 18 His attempt at a second, bigger bite at the apple is barred as a matter of law.

19        The WSBA's remaining arguments are similarly persuasive, and are to some extent
 20 addressed in the discussion of the other defendants' motions. Scheidler's §1983 claim is flawed
 21 because the WSBA is not a "person," and his Sherman Act claim is barred by the state action
 22 doctrine. [See Dkt. #s 79 and 92]

23
 24

1       The flaws in Scheidler's claims against the WSBA Defendants are substantive, not 2 procedural, and there is no conceivable set of facts that he could plead to make them plausible or
 3 viable. The WSBA Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Dkt. #79] is GRANTED and Scheidler's
 4 claims against them are DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE and WITHOUT LEAVE TO 5 AMEND.

6 E. Scheidler has not stated (and cannot plausibly state) a claim against the Court Clerk Defendants.

7       Scheidler's second amended complaint adds as new parties the Clerk of the Court of 8 Appeals (David Ponzoha) and the Clerk of the Supreme Court (Susan Carlson). His complaint
 9 against these parties is long on labels and conclusions, but short on facts. He alleges that each
 10 defendant refused to accept his proposed appellate pleadings in prior cases, and that his appeals
 11 were dismissed as a result:

12. Circa 8-15-2011 re case #857164. CJC grievance filed circa 2012, Susan Carlson, clerk of 13 the WA Supreme Court, refused to file pleadings plaintiff delivered to her in an appeal
 14 describing perjury and the subornation of perjury concerning rulings that favored WA State 15 Bar associate Scott Ellerby. The pleading was a reply brief.
163. Circa 1-28-2014 re case #454351. Grievance filed circa 2014. David Ponzoha, Clerk of the 16 Court of Appeals II refused to file an opening brief plaintiff delivered to him describing 17 perjury and the subornation of perjury concerning an appeal from a ruling awarding Scott
 18 Ellerby attorney fees as a sanction of $120k, by Judge Hull, a successor judge who never sat 19 on the case at any time prior to this 'sanction.' Appendix 8 "Opening Brief" is attached for the courts convenience.
164. Then these two Clerks dismissed the respective appeal for not filing the briefs. The Clerk's 21 reasons dismissing the respective appeals were complete fabrications and noted as 22 fabrications in motions to 'Amend the Clerks rulings' – NONE of the Motions to amend 23 were accepted by a reviewing panel of judges who are all Bar participants.

24 [Dkt. #58 at 32-33]

Scheidler claims that Carlson rejected his filing because he refused to pay the filing fee:

- c) With respect to Carlson's unlawful demand that Scheidler pay a filing fee for an appeal....

The ONLY party Carlson could properly demand pay a fee is the “local governmental entity” and NOT Scheidler. Therefore the Supreme Court does not have “personal jurisdiction” of Scheidler with respect to this “fee” as he isn’t the party statutorily required to pay the fee Carlson demanded. Again preclusion theories are inapplicable as personal jurisdiction is lacking. [Subject matter jurisdiction is also questioned below]

[Dkt. #108 at 4].

Scheidler claims that Ponzoha rejected his Ellerby<sup>13</sup> Brief because he (falsely) claimed it did not conform<sup>14</sup> to the Rules of Appellate Procedure. [See Dkt. #108 at 6; Dkt. #58-8 (Brief); Dkt. #102 Ex. 3 (Ponzoha's letter).]

The Court Defendants argue persuasively that Scheidler's claims are "an unshielded attempt at a de facto appeal of his State Court cases." [Dkt. #100 at 9] They argue that such an effort is flatly prohibited:

The Rooker-Feldman doctrine precludes “cases brought by state-court losers complaining of injuries caused by state-court judgments . . . and inviting district court review and rejection of those judgments.” Exxon Mobil Corp. v. Saudi Basic Indus. Corp., 544 U.S. 280, 284, 125 S. Ct. 1517, 1521, 161 L. Ed. 2d 454 (2005).

[W]hen a losing plaintiff in state court brings a suit in federal district court asserting as legal wrongs the allegedly erroneous legal rulings of the state court and seeks to vacate or set aside the judgment of that court, the federal suit is a forbidden de facto appeal. Noel v. Hall, 341 F.3d 1148, 1156 (9th Cir.2003); Carmona v. Carmona, 603 F.3d 1041, 1050 (9th Cir. 2008); see e.g. Giampa v. Duckworth, 586 F. App'x 284 (9th Cir. 2014) (Affirming dismissal of claims

<sup>13</sup> The Court of Appeals affirmed the dismissal of Scheidler's claims against Ellerby in July 2012. It reversed the attorneys' fee award, and remanded for a revised award. On remand, Scheidler sought additional relief, which was denied, and he appealed again. Scheidler's claims against Ponzoha relate to this second Ellerby appeal.

<sup>14</sup> A review of Scheidler's proposed brief makes it clear that at least three of the five cited deficiencies existed. Scheidler did not file an amended brief, was sanctioned, and failed to pay the sanction. Scheidler's second appeal was dismissed. [See Dkt. #102 and Exhibits thereto].

1           against judges, court clerks, state agencies, and prosecutors; claim against clerks
 2           for refusing to accept filings was improper collateral challenge to state court
 3           orders under Rooker-Feldman).

4 [Dkt. # 100 at 9-10]. Scheidler argues that he is not seeking to re-litigate anything (and is 5 instead suing these wrong-doers for the first time), and that Rooker-Feldman is no longer the rule
 6 after Saudi Basic. As to the latter, he is legally wrong. No authority permits this court to review
 7 and reverse state appellate court decisions.

8           And as to the former argument, Scheidler is factually wrong. He does claim that because 9 Ponzoha breached various duties, the prior state court adjudication of his second Ellerby appeal
 10 is “void”—he seeks to undo it:

10 f) Fraud upon the Court removes Rooker-Feldman and res judicata preclusions.

11           The MOMENT David Ponzoha violated the law affecting the outcome of Scheidler’s
 12 lawsuit by dismissing Scheidler’s appeal without addressing the issues raised by Scheidler, 13 Ponzoha committed a ‘fraud upon the court’. The MOMENT David Ponzoha committed a fraud
 14 upon the court he violated Scheidler’s right to a fair and impartial forum and the entire case is 15 VOID for fraud and Ponzoha’s conduct becomes a matter for trial.

16 [Dkt. #108 at 12] See also Scheidler’s state court “Motion to Modify,” similarly accusing 17 Ponzoha of corruption, fraud and dishonesty, and seeking the same relief: “vacation” of the prior 18 dismissal as a “fraud on the court.” [Dkt. # 108-1, Ex. 3 at 9-15]

19           Rooker Feldman bars Scheidler’s effort to obtain relief from or to overturn the prior 20 adjudications. There are no conceivable additional or different facts that he could plead to make 21 this claim plausible.

22           Scheidler’s second set of claims—seeking millions in damages against the Court
 23 Defendants personally under §1983, RICO, the Sherman Act and other statutes—is also 24 irrevocably flawed. The Clerks are entitled to quasi-judicial immunity from all such claims.

1   | Mireles v. Waco, 502 U.S. 9 (1991); Ashelman v. Pope, 793 F.2d 1072, 1074 (9th Cir. 1986);
2   | Giampa, supra, (clerk has quasi-judicial immunity).

3           To the extent Scheidler seeks retrospective relief for the conduct he alleges—money
4   damages and other punishment as redress for past wrongs—the Clerks are also entitled to 5   Eleventh Amendment immunity. See Puerto Rico Aqueduct and Sewer Auth. V. Metcalf & Eddy,
6   Inc., 506 U.S. 139, 146 (1993) (Ex Parte Young exception to Eleventh Amendment immunity is 7   narrow and applies only to purely prospective relief; does not permit judgments against state
8   officers declaring that the violated federal law in the past.) See also Ex Parte Young, 209 U.S.
9   123 (1908), and cases cited and discussed in Defendants’ Motion. [Dkt. #100 at 12-15]

10           Despite his current claims to the contrary, it is clear that the relief Scheidler seeks from 11   these defendants is retrospective. See Dkt. #58 at 54-60. He does seek “injunctive relief,” but 12   the injunction he seeks is not general; he seeks an injunction to prevent recognition (or 13   enforcement) of prior orders adverse to him. [See Dkt. #s 58, 108] Simply labeling the relief he 14   seeks “prospective” does not defeat immunity.

15           Scheidler’s claims against the Court Defendants seek to overturn (or preclude 16   enforcement of) past court decisions adverse to him, or to hold the decision-makers personally
17   liable for ruling against him. Such relief is not available as a matter of law, and there are no 18   conceivable additional facts or claims that he could plead that would change that conclusion.

19           The State Court Defendants’ Motion to Dismiss [Dkt. #100] is GRANTED and all of
20   Scheidler’s claims against them are DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE and WITHOUT LEAVE
21   TO AMEND.

22
23
24

1     F. Scheidler has not stated (and cannot plausibly state) a claim against the BoTA
2       Defendants.

3           Scheidler's second amended complaint reiterates his claims against Kay Slonum (the 4       Board of Tax Appeals Chair), and it also asserts all of his new claims against her. But he adds
5       no material factual support for his claims. Scheidler also adds the BoTA as a defendant, though 6       it is not clear that he seeks more from it than a reversal of its property tax exemption decision.
7           BoTA does not read Scheidler's second amended complaint as asserting a RICO claim against it.

8           Other than the fact they are "defendants"—Scheidler broadly accuses "the defendants" of 9       §1983, RICO, Sherman Act, ADA and numerous criminal violations—his second amended 10      complaint [Dkt. #58] and his Response to the Motion [Dkt #89] contain very little in the way of 11      factual allegations against BoTA or Slonum.

12           The BoTA Defendants seek dismissal of all Scheidler's claims against them. They argue
13      that his allegations of criminal violations have already been dismissed, and repeating or revising
14      them does not change the fact that none of the cited criminal statutes give rise to a civil tort claim.
15           This is correct; Scheidler cannot prosecute the alleged crimes as a private person.

16           The BOTA Defendants also argue that the civil claims against them—§1983, RICO, 17       Sherman Act, ADA —have no factual support. This too is correct. Scheidler does not actually 18      allege that BoTA did anything other than have Slonum as its chair. And it alleges only that 19      Slonum decided against him<sup>15</sup>, that she "supported" Avery and she is a RICO defendant in "an 20      association-in fact with the Bar Defendants and Avery." [Dkt. #58 at 3]

22           <sup>15</sup> Scheidler repeatedly claims that Slonum "dismissed his appeal for lack of jurisdiction," 23       [See, e.g., Dkt. # 1-2 at 7] but that is demonstrably untrue. She considered and denied the appeal 24       on the merits because Scheidler's reading of the statute and the Assessor's form was wrong. She 25       did not consider his "other" causes of action because the BoTA lacked of jurisdiction over them.
26       [Dkt. #1-2 at 52-55]

1 Scheidler has failed to articulate any plausible connection between these defendants and 2 any of his claims for relief. Instead, they claim, Scheidler's complaint is akin to the one
 3 dismissed in McHenry v. Renne, 84 F.3d 1172, 1179 (9th Cir. 1996): It contains nothing more
 4 than "narrative ramblings and political griping." They accurately cite McHenry for the 5 proposition that "prolix, confusing complaints such as the ones plaintiffs filed in this case impose
 6 unfair burdens on litigants and judges." Id.

7 Scheidler's Response does not address these arguments, and the Court agrees that the 8 claims are without merit. Scheidler's efforts to hold Slonum personally liable for her alleged 9 failure to properly handle his BOE appeal to the BoTA were, and are, without merit. And there 10 are no conceivable additional or different facts (or claims) that Scheidler could assert against the 11 BoTA defendants that would change this conclusion.

12 The BoTA Defendants' Motion to Dismiss [Dkt. # 76] is GRANTED, and Scheidler's
 13 claims against them are DISMISSED WITH PREJUDICE and WITHOUT LEAVE TO 14 AMEND.

15 G. Scheidler's motion to amend his complaint a fourth (or fifth) time is denied.

16 Scheidler seeks leave to amend his complaint to incorporate an expanded RICO statement
 17 [Dkt. #68]. In response to the defendants' motions to dismiss, he seeks an additional opportunity 18 to amend. [Dkt. #s 89 and 108] He has already filed three complaints and a fourth proposed 19 amended complaint, in this case. [Dkt. #s 1-2, 1-3, 58, and 68]

20 Leave to amend a complaint under Rule 15(a) "shall be freely given when justice so 21 requires." Carvalho v. Equifax Info. Services, LLC, 629 F.3d 876, 892 (9th Cir. 2010) (citing 22 Forman v. Davis, 371 U.S. 178, 182 (1962)). This policy is "to be applied with extreme
 23 liberality." Eminence Capital, LLC v. Aspeon, Inc., 316 F.3d 1048, 1051 (9th Cir. 2003)
 24 (citations omitted). In determining whether to grant leave under Rule 15, courts consider five

1 factors: “bad faith, undue delay, prejudice to the opposing party, futility of amendment, and 2 whether the plaintiff has previously amended the complaint.” *United States v. Corinthian
 3 Colleges*, 655 F.3d 984, 995 (9th Cir. 2011) (emphasis added). Among these factors, prejudice
 4 to the opposing party carries the greatest weight. Eminence Capital, 316 F.3d at 1052.

5       A proposed amendment is futile “if no set of facts can be proved under the amendment to 6 the pleadings that would constitute a valid and sufficient claim or defense.” *Gaskill v. Travelers
 7 Ins. Co.*, No. 11-cv-05847-RJB, 2012 WL 1605221, at *2 (W.D. Wash. May 8, 2012) (citing 8 Sweaney v. Ada County, Idaho, 119 F.3d 1385, 1393 (9th Cir.1997)).

9           Scheidler’s motions for leave to amend fail under each of these considerations.

10          Scheidler’s proposed amended RICO statement is a 129-page narrative wholly unrelated
 11 to the property tax exemption appeal, or to the conduct of any of the original defendants. It 12 appears instead to be a long list of lawyers who faced (or who Scheidler claims should have 13 faced) disciplinary proceedings in this state. These disciplinary proceedings facially have 14 nothing to do with Scheidler, the named defendants, or this case. Indeed, many of the allegations
 15 appear to be copied from some other document or pleading, filed on behalf of some other party 16 in some other proceeding.

17          The proposed amendment would not cure the deficiencies discussed above, and it is futile 18 as a matter of law. Scheidler’s attempts to re-litigate completed disciplinary proceedings to 19 which he is not a party face at least the following insurmountable hurdles: Scheidler has no 20 standing to pursue claims against or on behalf of these non-parties. He has no ability as a non-
 21 attorney pro se litigant to represent these entities, and even if he were an attorney, there is no
 22 evidence any of these attorneys consented to his representation. Scheidler cannot prosecute 23 alleged criminal violations as a private citizen. Only the U.S. Attorney can initiate criminal 24

1 proceedings in federal court. See Keenan v. McGrath, 328 F.2d 610, 611 (1st Cir.1964). Private 2 parties cannot pursue charges for violations of criminal provisions; only prosecutors can.
 3 Fritcher v. USDA Forest Serv., No. 1:12-CV-02033-LJO, 2013 WL 593688, at *3 (E.D. Cal.
 4 Feb. 14, 2013).

5 Scheidler's attempts to re-litigate prior adjudications are also barred by res judicata or 6 collateral estoppel. And despite what appears to be a conscious effort to not date the events, it is 7 clear that most of them occurred many years ago, and are time-barred in any event:

8       J. Grant Anderson sought and received the aid of the enterprise who failed to prosecute 9 him for unethical activities involving a client's trust account.

10       K. Bobbe Bridges enlisted the aid of the enterprise in avoiding drunk driving charges
 11 being brought against her as a bar violation

12       L. Christine Grey, headed the prosecution of Douglas Schafer, covering for Grant
 13 Anderson, made a retaliatory prosecution of Jeffery Poole, who was eventually disbarred 14 Linda Eide, headed the prosecution of Grunstein, proceeded to charge and convict without jurisdiction, destroyed evidence.

15       18. It is a custom and practice for WSBA to retaliate against individuals who expose
 16 government corruption. See this RICO Statement re the Bar's retaliation against Anne Block
 17 and her law license for exposing the city of Gold Bar's Director of Emergency Services, John 18 Pennington, who is likely responsible, at least in part, for the 43 deaths from a landslide in Oso, 19 WA. See RICO statement concerning retaliation against Schaffer for exposing corrupt judge.
 20 See RICO statement concerning John Scannell for exposing bar violations by AG for blowing $17 million on Beckman case.

21 [Dkt. #68 at 6, 16]

22       This court does not have jurisdiction to review state court proceedings under Rooker-
 23 Feldman. A district court must give full faith and credit to state court judgments, even if the 24

1 state court erred by refusing to consider a party's federal claims. See Exxon Mobil Corp. v.
2 Saudi Basic Industries Corp., 544 U.S. 280, 293 (2005).

3 Scheidler's second amended complaint and his proposed third amended complaint do not
4 articulate any claim (no matter how liberally construed) that any defendant could fairly be 5 expected to reasonably answer. It is therefore prejudicial to them. It would be prejudicial to 6 make any party re-litigate the details of every disciplinary proceeding that Scheidler claims
7 should have been resolved differently. None of the defendants can, or should be required to,
8 address Scheidler's wide-ranging, wild conspiracy allegations on behalf of, or against, non-9 parties.

10 Furthermore, the Court cannot conclude that Scheidler is litigating in good faith. A plain-
11 vanilla 1998 property tax dispute has exploded into a RICO conspiracy involving every lawyer 12 and judge in the state. Scheidler does not appear to believe in reasonable disagreements; if 13 someone decides against him, or advocates against him on behalf of her client, she is corrupt and 14 criminal, and promptly sued. He has no reasonable expectation of a billion dollar judgment, but 15 he must realize that responding to hundreds of pages of accusations costs time and money—his 16 lawsuits are, themselves, a form of punishment for those he repeatedly sues.

17 Finally, Scheidler has had ample opportunity to state a viable, plausible claim, and has 18 repeatedly failed to do so. He has filed three complaints so far in this case, and he has filed at 19 least as many cases in other courts against the same parties, for the same conduct, over the years.
20 Scheidler's proposed amendments do not address the many fatal flaws in his claims, and a fifth
21 opportunity to amend in this case would be prejudicial, and futile. It is not warranted as a matter 22 of law. Scheidler's Motion to Amend [Dkt. #68] is DENIED, and his general request for leave to 23 amend again (contained in his responses [Dkt. #s 89 and 108]) is DENIED.

24

1     H. Scheidler's property tax appeal is denied, and the BoTA's determination is affirmed.

2                 The remaining, original issue is Scheidler's appeal of the BoTA's decision that Avery
 3 correctly determined that he is not entitled to a property tax exemption for 2007-2010, based on 4 his "disposable income" for the preceding years.

5                 Slonum argued in her first Motion to Dismiss [Dkt. #8]—which was granted [Dkt. #38], 6 and affirmed [Dkt. #51]—that she was not a proper defendant for an appeal of an adverse
 7 property tax decision, and that an “APA (Chapter 34.05 RCW) claim” seeking damages from her
 8 (or Avery) personally, for real or perceived errors, was not a viable route to the property tax 9 relief Scheidler sought. Instead, as she pointed out, the statutory authority for judicial review of 10 a BoTA decision is RCW 82.03.180. These claims are correct, and Scheidler’s claims on these 11 bases are dismissed with prejudice above.

12                 Scheidler second amended complaint repeats these claims, reiterates his claim for relief
 13 against the defendants personally under the APA, and does not mention RCW 82.03.180.
 14 Instead he argues that “the core” of his claim is that Avery committed fraud (and crimes) by 15 forced him to sign his property tax exemption applications “under duress.” [Dkt. #58 at 27; see 16 also Dkt. #15-12 (same).] This claim is spurious.

17                 Avery’s current Motion to Dismiss seeks dismissal of the APA claim, calling it “nothing 18 more than a tort claim or claim for declaratory relief labeled as an ‘administrative appeal.’”
 19 [Dkt. #77 at 8] This characterization is not unfair: Scheidler is seemingly incapable of separating 20 his (potentially viable) claim for property tax relief from his (irrevocably flawed) claims that the 21 decision-makers were not just legally wrong, but also dishonest, corrupt, criminals personally 22 liable to him.

23                 Nevertheless, Scheidler’s “Ninth Cause of Action: Administrative Appeal Per 34.50”
 24 does seek an “award of his rightful property tax reduction.” [Dkt. #58 at 54] The Court will

1 address the merits of the Scheidler's effort to overturn the denial of his property tax exemption
 2 applications, based on the arguments and documents<sup>16</sup> in this case.

3 Retired or disabled Washington taxpayers with disposable incomes less than $35,000 are 4 entitled to a property tax exemption. RCW 84.36.381; see Chapter 84.36 RCW. The statute
 5 describes how to determine "disposable income" in detail:

6 (5) "Disposable income" means adjusted gross income as defined in the federal 7 internal revenue code[] plus all of the following items to the extent they are not included in or have been deducted from adjusted gross income:

- 8 (a) Capital gains, other than gain excluded from income under section 121 of the federal internal revenue code to the extent it is reinvested in a new principal residence;
- 9 (b) Amounts deducted for loss;
- 10 (c) Amounts deducted for depreciation;
- 11 (d) Pension and annuity receipts;
- 12 (e) Military pay and benefits other than attendant-care and medical-aid payments;
- 13 (f) Veterans benefits, other than:
  - (i) Attendant-care payments;
  - (ii) Medical-aid payments;
  - (iii) Disability compensation, as defined in Title 38, part 3, section 3.4 of the code of federal regulations, as of January 1, 2008; and
  - (iv) Dependency and indemnity compensation, as defined in Title 38, part 3, section 3.5 of the code of federal regulations, as of January 1, 2008;
- 14 (g) Federal social security act and railroad retirement benefits;
- 15 (h) Dividend receipts; and
- 16 (i) Interest received on state and municipal bonds.

17 RCW 84.36.383(5) (emphasis added).

18 A taxpayer's "disposable income" for purposes of the state property tax exemption is 19 therefore often greater than the "AGI" he calculated for purposes of paying federal income tax.
 20 If the taxpayer was able to avoid including capital gains in his AGI, those gains are added to the 21

22         <sup>16</sup> These include (but are not limited to) Scheidler's original complaint, with attachments
 23 [Dkt. #1-2]; his Response to Avery's first Motion to Dismiss, with attachments [Dkt. #15]; his 24 second amended complaint, with attachments [Dkt. #58]; and his Response to Avery's second Motion to Dismiss [Dkt. #89].

1 AGI in calculating his disposable income. Similarly, if the taxpayer was able to reduce his AGI
2 calculation by deducting losses (or depreciation), those amounts are included—they are added
3 back into—the state law disposable income calculation, used to determine his eligibility for a 4 property tax exemption. However, if the AGI already includes the capital gains (or if the losses
5 were not used to reduce the AGI), then they are not added back for purposes of the disposable 6 income calculation.

7 RCW 84.36.383(4) also permits a taxpayer to then subtract from his “disposable income”
8 three specific categories of expenses often incurred by the retired or disabled:

- 9 (a) Drugs supplied by prescription of a medical practitioner authorized by the laws of this state or another jurisdiction to issue prescriptions;
- 10 (b) The treatment or care of either person received in the home or in a nursing home, assisted living facility, or adult family home; and
- 12 (c) Health care insurance premiums for medicare under Title XVIII of the social security act.

13 RCW 84.36.383(4).

14 In simple terms, a taxpayer’s “disposable income” is: his AGI, plus certain kinds of 15 “income” not already included in the AGI, plus certain deductions which were included in the 16 AGI, minus a limited class of expenses.

17 The genesis for Scheidler’s various lawsuits over the past two decades is his belief that 18 the Kitsap County Assessor’s form for determining disposable income (specifically, its 19 instructions) is contrary to this statute. Scheidler has prepared a side-by-side comparison that he 20 claims demonstrates the error:

1 TABLE OF PERTINENT LANGUAGE illustrating the substantive difference between 2 Exhibit 1 and controlling law.

3 EXHIBIT 1: THE “APPLICATION”

4 Defendant James Avery’s version of the law, Page 3, top paragraph of the application states this instruction:

5 If you file a tax return with the IRS and your return included any deductions for the following items or if any of these items were not included in your adjusted gross income, they must be reported on your application for purposes of this exemption program:

6 Capital gains (cannot offset with losses) ...

7 RCW 84.36.383(5)

8 The Controlling law that this “application/instruction” is purported to carryout states the opposite.

9 RCW 84.36.383 (5) "Disposable
income" means adjusted gross
income as defined in the federal internal revenue code, as amended prior to January 1, 1989, or such subsequent date as the director may provide by rule consistent with the purpose of this section, plus all of the following items to the extent they are not included in or have been deducted from adjusted gross
income:

 11 This difference between defendant James Avery’s version of the law and the 12 “True” law results in an improper treatment of the items that follow the instruction.

13
 14 Defendant Avery says, “the following amounts on your IRS return must be added to adjusted gross income.”

 16 The Controlling law says, “the following amounts on your IRS return must be included IF THEY HAVE NOT ALREADY BEEN INCLUDED in adjusted gross income.

 18 Defendant Avery’s instruction leaves out the “conditional analysis – if not already included” and in that way “DOUBLE COUNTS” those amounts that “have already been 19 included.” This instruction by Avery “IMPROPERLY INCREASES” a persons presumed 20 income – and income is a critical element in obtaining the class’s “constitutional rights.”

21 [Dkt. #15 at 9. Scheidler includes an exemplar exemption application packet at Dkt. #15-

22 1]

1 As an initial matter, Scheidler's claim that the instructions "leave out the conditional
2 analysis" is simply not correct. The very first word of the disputed instructions is "If." The
3 Kitsap County form correctly instructs that if certain income was excluded from the AGI
4 calculation, or if various deductions were included in it, then those amounts "must be reported on 5 your application for purposes of this exemption program." [See Dkt. #15-1 at 4, mirroring the 6 list in RCW 84.36.383(5).]

7 Scheidler's second claim—that this statutory scheme "INCREASES a person's presumed 8 income"—is absolutely correct. That is the point. Eligibility for the state property tax 9 exemption is not based on the taxpayer's AGI; it is based on his "disposable income." The 10 statutory scheme reflects a conscious policy decision to count as "disposable income" some 11 capital gains and other receipts that the IRS does not require the taxpayer to include in his AGI.
12 It similarly disallows deductions for losses or depreciation that the IRS does allow the taxpayer
13 to deduct from his AGI. It specifically does not permit a property tax payer to offset capital 14 gains with other losses.

15 Scheidler's submissions include an undated and untitled document that he claims is 16 evidence that the Department of Revenue is "involved in the Assessor's fraud." [Dkt. # 58-4]
17 The source of this document is unknown, but it appears to be a handout from a state Assessors'
18 "administrative workshop," intended to address the question raised by Scheidler here: "why can't 19 losses offset gains?":

20
22
23
24

1 During the Admin workshop in Moses Lake, Scott Furman, Okanogan County Assessor, 2 requested some "language" that can be used when responding to those questions about why we cannot use losses to offset gains. The language I normally use is actually a paraphrase from a BTA case - Docket #55692. Other docket numbers for reference are #56336 and #55067. Here's a sample:

4 The general rules pertaining to property tax exemptions require that the statutory language be construed strictly, though fairly. Taxation is the rule and exemption is the exception. The 5 Legislature has set specific criteria for exempting property from property taxes because exemptions create a "shift" of the tax burden, causing other taxpayers in the taxing district to actually pay higher taxes.
6

7 ***
8

9 The State law governing property tax exemption is independent of the federal income tax 10 statutes and the federal "adjusted gross income" figure is only the starting point for calculating "disposable income."
11

12 ***
13

14 Although I am sympathetic to your situation and understand your thoughts on the matter, the laws and rules governing the Senior and Disabled Persons Exemption program are very clear. In the calculation of income for this program, losses must be excluded, whether or not they can be used to offset taxable income for federal income tax purposes. We cannot ask other taxpayers to subsidize the personal losses of someone else.
15

16 [Dkt. #58-4] This analysis is not evidence of some fraud or conspiracy; it is additional evidence that Scheidler's position is wrong. It too is exactly consistent with the statutory scheme, and to the extent it accurately reflects the Department of Revenue's position, the DOR is correct.
17

18 Scheidler's June 2010 letter to Avery suggests that even he realizes that his dispute is not really with the Kitsap County Assessor's form, but with the 35-year-old state statute that 19 expressly makes the distinctions he complains about. That letter acknowledges that the property tax exemption is based on a measure of "income" that is different than the income upon which 20 the taxpayer must pay federal income tax:
21

- 1 • The County's instructions begin with AGI but then "excludes" amounts that went 2 into calculating AGI. For example, AGI includes amounts deducted for loss. Yet
3 the County "excludes" all losses without any rational and in opposition to the 4 conditions explicitly expressed in .383(5), which states amounts deducted for loss
5 must be included in AGI if those amounts have not yet been included. IRS AGI 6 "includes" amounts deducted for loss.
- 7 • The county, by arbitrarily excluding losses that are included in the calculation of 8 AGI, creates a structural error in the calculation of Disposable Income. This 9 structural error artificially increases disposable income, which determines the 10 amount of TAX, or the denial of the benefit.

[Dkt. #15-2 at 2] The "rationale" for not permitting the taxpayer to use losses to offset gains for purposes of determining his "disposable income"—even though the IRS allows such an offset—is to avoid having other property tax payers subsidize those losses. And it is the legislature's rationale, not Avery's.

This issue has been correctly determined by prior Kitsap County Assessor, Assessor Avery, the Board of Equalization, and the Washington State Board of Tax Appeals. Kitsap County's property tax exemption form (like Pierce<sup>17</sup> County's and King County's) expressly and correctly does not permit a taxpayer to use losses to offset capital gains. That is the law in this state. RCW 84.36.383(5).

Scheidler's appeal of the Board of Tax Appeal's September 6, 2012 decision [Dkt. #1-2 at 54] is DENIED and that decision is AFFIRMED.

<sup>17</sup> Pierce and King County's property tax exemption application forms are available online, through these links:

<https://www.co.pierce.wa.us/index.aspx?nid=702>

<http://www.kingcounty.gov/depts/assessor/Forms.aspx>

Like Kitsap's, each county's instructions specifically and consistently do not permit the applicant to offset income with losses in calculating his disposable income.

CONCLUSION

2 All of Scheidler's claims against all defendants are baseless and they cannot be saved by 3 additional amendment. They are DISMISSED with prejudice and without leave to amend. The 4 BoTA's decision denying Scheidler's property tax exemption applications for 2007-2010 is 5 AFFIRMED. Scheidler's BoTA appeal is DISMISSED with prejudice and without leave to 6 amend. IT IS SO ORDERED.
